BRYAN PAINTS TRIAL OF EVOLUTION CASE AS 'DUEL TO DEATH'

PUBLIC HEARING IS SLATED TODAY UPON RESOLUTION

Eleventh Hour Unsigned Circular Addressed to Legislators, in Effort To Halt Measure.

COWARDLY STAB, PROPONENTS SAY

Joint Committees of House and Senate To Hold Hearing on Improvement Project.

With a public hearing on the resolution granting the city of Atlanta permission to construct viaducts over street-owned railway property at Pryor street and Central avenue slated for this afternoon by the W. & A. committee of the house and senate, anonymous opposition to the measure developed at the eleventh hour Tuesday night and was promptly made the object of a searching counter-attack by legislators sponsoring the proposal.

The last-minute opposition to the measure came in the form of an unsigned communication addressed to members of the legislature attacking the viaducts resolution in veiled and vague terms as "an Atlanta proposal." Without giving express reasons, the document insinuated that in some unnamed manner the property of the state would be damaged by erection of the two great proposed viaducts.

A caustic statement was immediately issued by members of Fulton and DeKalb delegations in the house and senators from this and the 34th district in which the anonymous circular was branded as an underhand effort on the part of private, self-interested parties to halt a great Georgia improvement.

Low Appeal to Prejudice.

"We are left to conjecture who wrote these unsigned documents," the statement of the legislators added. "They abound in low appeals to prejudice and such silly attempts at argument that anyone who stops to reflect must cast them aside as unworthy of consideration."

The public hearing on the viaducts resolution will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the senate chamber by the Western & Atlantic committee of the house to which the resolution has been referred. Miss Bessie Kempton, member from Fulton and chairman of the committee, has announced that any interested

HUGE LUMBER FIRE HITS MACON PLANT

Case-Fowler Company Suffers $1,000,000 Loss; Located Outside City, Firemen Hampered.

Macon, Ga., July 7.—Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the big lumber yard of the Case-Fowler Lumber company, on the site of old Camp Harris, this afternoon. The planing mill, the saw-mill and the dry kiln were saved. The loss will be about $1,000,000.

The fire was first discovered at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon and late tonight it was burning the last piles of lumber and threatened the Central of Georgia railway's crescent plant, less than a hundred yards away, and also the plant of the Fowler-Wainwright Handle company, a short distance north. However, both were saved.

There was a general alarm and all of the available fire companies in the city were rushed to the scene to aid, notwithstanding the fact that the plant was outside the city.

The 14,000-gallon tank of water on the company's property was quickly exhausted, but more water was obtained from a lake on the premises and from the city's mains, through the crescent plant. Water had no effect on the flames. The heat was so intense that firemen at times could not get within 100 feet of the huge blazing stacks of lumber.

The fire started in the southeast corner of the yard, quickly destroyed eight loaded cars of lumber and then moved northeastward, threatening for a time the big planing mill, one of the largest in the south. The wind, however, shifted, and the mill was saved, but the flames were driven into the main part of the yard, where lumber valued at from $30 to $120 a thousand feet was stacked in huge piles.

It was partly covered by insurance.

Parents Set Jazz Examples, Endeavor Chieftain Asserts

Portland, Oregon, July 7.—The old folks in this "jazz age" are just as foolish as the young people and more to be blamed, according to Dr. Francis Clark, founder and president emeritus of the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

Dr. Clark laid aside his other engagements at the International Christian Endeavor convention here Tuesday night to tell what he thought of the much-criticized younger generation.

"The young folks do just what the old folks do," he said. "If a mother powders her nose her daughter will do likewise. A father can't do something and tell his son not to do it. Children will not be any better than their parents."

"This tendency of the day we call 'jazz' is not so bad in itself. However, frivolity keeps the mind off more serious, worth-while things. 'That is where the danger lies. 'There isn't much difference between boys and girls when it comes to reckless living. Girls attract more attention by the things they do. 'Short skirts and bobbed hair, powder and paint, are all part of this 'jazz' living. It will wear off some day," Dr. Clark said he was not alarmed over the younger generation, declaring the whole mass was being educated for what relatively a few sensational youngsters are doing.

"This Christian Endeavor convention is just as representative of the young folks as a boisterous dance hall."

COOLIDGE FAVORS INCOME REVENUE SLASH FOR U. S.

Great Lessening If Not Abolition of Inheritance Levy Also Favored by President.

Swampscott, Mass., July 7.—(AP)—President Coolidge feels that the next reduction in taxes should be made on incomes all along the line.

The president also stands on his previous pronouncement that the inheritance tax should be greatly reduced if not completely wiped out.

While leaving the actual preparation of the tax reduction bill in the hands of the house ways and means committee and treasury officials, Mr. Coolidge hopes that it will provide for general relief and at the same time make possible the greatest amount of returns in revenue.

To accomplish this end Mr. Coolidge thinks the maximum surtax should be cut at least to 25 per cent. If it is the opinion of experts, however, that a smaller maximum surtax rate, even as low as 12 per cent, would produce greater returns to the government and stimulate business, he would favor this rate.

His figures on the condition of the treasury at the close of the fiscal year on June 30 have not been received by the president and he is reserving opinion on a definite tax reduction scheme until he receives this advice. He believes, however, that the present maximum surtax rate does not permit a proper development of business and wants attention centered particularly on these rates. Although treasury officials and congressional leaders have mentioned a possible cut in the present maximum surtax rate of 40 per cent to 15 per cent, this is the first time the figure of 12 per cent as a maximum surtax rate has been officially expressed.

Mr. Coolidge wants the normal rate reduced but also is leaving the plan in the hands of experts.

At the same time that the president's view regarding taxation were outlined the statement was made that he believes the American debt funding commission will reach some satisfactory agreement with France, Belgium, Italy and other debtor nations during the next few months. The preliminary negotiations now in progress, it was said, have led to this belief.

Actor Is Shot At Apartment By Young Wife

White Cargo Company Player Seriously Wounded; Assault Is Silent.

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Allen Davis, 25, understate to the leading man in the play, "White Cargo," was shot in the shoulder and head tonight by his chorus girl wife, in an apartment where he was dining with two friends. He was taken to the Poly-clinic hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Davis, known professionally as Edith Parker, entered the apartment as her husband was dining with Melville Anderson and Harry Wagstaff Gribble, playwright.

"I want to see my husband alone," she said.

Anderson and Gribble invited her to dine with them, but she again requested to see her husband alone. Passing through a kitchenette into a bedroom, she and Davis held a brief conversation.

A few seconds later Anderson and Gribble heard reports of a revolver. Mrs. Davis returned to the dining room and slaying the two men, ran to the street.

Three detectives in an automobile saw her running and stopped her. When they learned the cause of her flight they arrested her and she was held charged with felonious assault. The actor was placed under the care of a physician. An immediate operation was ordered.

At police station Mrs. Davis refused to talk.

Jury Returns Verdict of Guilty With Recommendation Against Fayette Man in Langston Case.

NO WITNESSES USED BY DEFENSE

Waller Is Third Man Found Guilty and Given Life Term for Mail Carrier's Death.

Fayetteville, Ga., July 7.—(Special).—The jury in the case of John Waller tried here today on a charge of accessory before the fact of the killing in October 1922, of James P. Langston, rural mail carrier, tonight returned a verdict of guilty, with recommendation of mercy and he was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge W. E. H. Sealey, of Fayette superior court, before whom the case was tried.

The jury was out for two and one-half hours, receiving the case at 9 o'clock and returning a verdict at 9:30. There were few persons in the court room when the verdict was returned, and the spectators realized that the final act in the trial that has gripped Fayette county for 10 days, was about to be closed.

Immediately after pronouncing sentence on Waller, Judge Sealey adjourned the special term of court, called to try the Langston case.

With the conviction of Waller today, brings the number up to three, who have received sentences for life for the death of the rural mail carrier, Ora Whittle and Oscar Dutton, having been convicted last week and given life terms on a murder charge.

The state closed its case today at 3:30 o'clock and the defense announced that it also rested. No witnesses were placed on the stand by the defense and Waller made no statement to the jury.

Arguments consumed three and one-half hours, followed by the charge of Judge Sealey.

The trial moved rapidly this morning, after its vacation since last Friday when Ora Whittle and Oscar Dutton were convicted of the murder of Langston and given life sentences in the state penitentiary. A jury was selected with little delay and the state, after establishing its case by witnesses, placed its star witness on the stand—Eula Waller, 23, daughter of the defendant—who gave practically the same testimony against her father today that she supplied last week against Whittle and Dutton.

Waller, a quiet girl of emotion, or excitement, she related to the jury how she had heard her father tell her uncle, Charlie Waller, that "we must get Ab Davis out of the way." She told of having heard her father and Ora Whittle discuss other features of the case. She said her father offered Whittle $500 to kill Davis.

It was brought out at the trial last week that Langston was probably killed through error, he having been

Cooler Wave Brings Relief To Wilted City

Sweltering Weather Gives Way to Breezes and Lower Temperatures.

A worn and wilted Atlanta Tuesday afternoon adopted a jaunty attitude and Tuesday night pulled up the covers with a contented smile and slept the sleep of the innocent and the just.

Real Atlanta weather had returned; cooling breezes and comfortable temperatures replacing a blistering, pitiless sun, sultry days and sweltering nights of the second torrid wave the city has weathered during the present phenomenally hot summer.

The local weather man—who during the past two weeks has acquired the habit of announcing maximum temperatures ranging from 92 to 101.2 degrees—Tuesday went back to his old trick of recording peak points in the 80's, and he promised a continuation of this latter innovation for today and probably Thursday.

Tuesday's record mercury reading was 82 degrees, as compared to 91 degrees on Monday; 92 on Sunday; 98 last Saturday; 101.2 last Friday, when the highest point in the city's weather history was recorded, and 96 last Thursday. Previous to the heat wave just ended, the year's high temperature was 97 degrees rung up on June 22 at the crest of the first unusually hot spell of the year.

Temperatures ranging from 70 to 90 degrees—with probable thunder-showers—are forecast for today by C. F. von Hermann, local weather prophet, who added that he saw little chance for heavy rains during the next few days.

Low-hanging clouds, refreshing breezes and light showers covering only small areas kept the thermometer to low figures Tuesday. Starting at 72 degrees early in the morning, the mercury mounted to 80 at noon and later in the afternoon reached its high point of 82 degrees.

Listening In On Dayton

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Dayton, Tenn., July.—Under the stress of the evolution trial Dayton is struggling to take on such big city ways as are necessary to give comfort to the visitors. But the itching palm, so epidemic in New York and other cities of the east, has not spread here. There is genuine hospitality that springs from kindly hearts rather than from polished manners. The writer making a midnight motor trip over mountain trails, roused an old man in a deserted mountain cabin to inquire the way.

"Lordy, man, that place is way over yander," he said. "You go straight on this road and you don't turn neither right nor left and you'll come to Pikeville." And when thanked this illiterate old man said, "You're very welcome," in as kindly a manner as one ever heard.

A visitor took a watch into the local watch repairer, an old man, apparently none too prosperous. He squinted and gripped the little black jeweler's glass in his eye and tinkered for 20 minutes. "Not a cent," he said when he handed over the watch.

After some persuasion, he hesitated a moment. "I won't take over a quarter," he said.

Dayton's Progressive club, which is organized on Rotary principles, is the liveliest force in town. It was organized before the war when a great calamity befell Dayton. Peter MacDonald, in Scotland, owned the steel plant here and the town depended entirely on it. Early in the war he tried to be the high iron king of England and was ruined. He committed suicide and his plant here was closed, leaving the town stranded.

Dayton business men set out to make the city economically independent. Strawberry-raising was developed into a tremendous industry and young George Rappleyea, an eastern chemist, who first suggested the evolution trial, was made manager of the mill here. The town is rapidly gaining a solid business prosperity.

$2,000,000 BONDS FOR NEW CITY HALL APPROVED BY SIMS

Mayor Formally Affixes Signature to Measure Passed by City Council Monday.

Atlanta's proposed 20-story municipal building came nearer to reality, and a referendum on September 23 on the question of issuing $2,000,000 worth of bonds for construction of the building became a certainty late Tuesday afternoon when Mayor Walter A. Sims signed a measure authorizing the election. City council by an overwhelming vote Monday afternoon went on record as favoring the proposition and scores of local business men and taxpayers have expressed the sentiment that the proposed building would mark one of Atlanta's greatest forward strides.

Councilman C. G. Allen, sponsor of the new city hall idea, upon being informed of the mayor's action, expressed confidence that the people will vote overwhelmingly for the bonds, particularly in view of the fact that they will call for no tax increase.

Mr. Allen's plan calls for renting of the present city hall at Forsyth and Marietta streets, and also of the office space in the new building not actually needed by the city, as a means of raising sufficient revenue to pay interest and sinking funds on the bonds.

The plan also contemplates sale of the present fire headquarters and police barracks.

While no official action has been taken it is generally assumed that the building would be located at Central avenue and Hunter street, immediately east of the present courthouse. The city already has asked county officials to donate that land as a site for the new building, and favorable action of the commissioners is expected.

According to plans already drawn by A. Ten Eyck Brown, Atlanta architect, the building would house every department of city government, including police and fire. It would contain the city and probably the county jails, court rooms, adequate office space for every department head and even small individual rooms for each council member.

The municipal building, as planned, would be one of the most beautiful and spacious in the entire nation, and would be without an equal in the south.

Contributes Fund of $250,000 To Defray Cost of Research.

New York, July 7.—Bernard M. Baruch, formerly chairman of the War Industries' board, has backed up his belief that wealth should be conscripted in time of war by establishing a fund of $250,000 to find a way to "take the profit out of war."

The Baruch fund will be used to defray the cost of research by the War Industries' board, the International Relations, recently established in Baltimore in connection with Johns Hopkins university, according to an announcement by Owen D. Young, co-author of the Dawes plan and chairman of the board of trustees of the school.

Although the gift will probably total $250,000, Young said it may run higher, according to the cost of the research in the particular subject in which Baruch has interested himself.

Baruch had long advocated conscription of wealth and industry in wartime as a deterrent to the activities of jingoes in peacetime. "In a similar emergency, there ought to be not only a mobilization of men, but of things and dollars," he declared in a published statement. This measure, he believed, would be a powerful agency toward preventing war.

Recently Young asked Baruch if he would back up his beliefs by submitting his ideas to a test of scientific research. Establishment of the fund was the answer and the gift was accepted unanimously by the board of trustees.

Walter Hines Page school, which has as members of its board Edward W. Bok, John W. Davis, Charles W. Eliot, Carter Glass, William Allen White and Franklin D. Roosevelt, aims to provide "the machinery of research to ascertain all of the facts which may lead to war or impair the peace." Separate funds have been established for research among the various departments of this subject, the Baruch gift dealing alone with the problems of profits from war.

EVOLUTION VICTORY IS SEEN AS PERIL TO CHRISTIANITY

Commoner, Now in Dayton, Says in Past Contest Has Been "Death Grapple in Dark."

CHRISTIANITY GOES IF EVOLUTION WINS

People of Tennessee Will Have Final Word To Say, in Control of Schools, He States.

Dayton, Tenn., July 7.—(AP)—The contest between evolution and Christianity is "a duel to the death," William Jennings Bryan declared tonight in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the progressive Dayton club in the dining room of the Hotel Auka.

"It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark," said Mr. Bryan, who arrived here today in preparation for the trial of John T. Scopes, who is charged with violating the Tennessee statute against teaching evolution in the public schools.

"From this time on it will be a death grapple in the light."

Mr. Bryan, who is associated with counsel for the prosecution of the young high school instructor, was guest of the club which two weeks ago entertained Clarence Darrow of defense counsel, in the same dining room. The fundamentalist leader was introduced tonight by Wallace Haggard, member of the prosecution counsel. A welcome to Dayton was extended by John L. Godsey, local member of defense counsel.

"People Must Rule."

One issue of the coming trial, which is scheduled to begin next Friday, is whether the people shall rule in the United States, the speaker asserted. The people are the only source of the power, he said, and will in the end control.

The dinner ended a day which for Dayton has been one of the busiest since the coming of Darrow, Colby and Malone. The arrival of Mr. Bryan shortly after noon followed the return of John Thomas Scopes and Dr. John R. Neal, chief defense counsel, from Cookeville, where yesterday they filed a petition for injunction to remove the case from the state to the federal courts.

Mr. Bryan, immediately after stepping from the train which made a special stop to deposit him in Dayton, was escorted to the home of Richard Rogers, where he will make his headquarters during his stay in Dayton. During the afternoon, he held a brief conference with Sue R. Hicks, Wallace C. Haggard, Judge J. G. McKenzie and Herbert Hicks, local members of the prosecution staff, and visited various points of interest in Dayton.

He viewed the court room in which the trial will be held, visited the newscaster club rooms and the office of the Hicks brothers.

Upon stepping from the train when he was met by a host of Daytonians, and dozens of newspaper correspondents.

Crusader Bryan Arrives For Battle on Evolution

BY RAYMOND CAPPER.

United News Staff Correspondent. Dayton, Tenn., July 7.—The Bryan of old, with the crusader's fire in his eye, arrived in Dayton Tuesday to take charge of the prosecution in the Scopes evolution trial.

The Royal Palm from Florida made a special stop and the commoner stepped off, holding a large white tropical helmet. The five hundred persons at the station crowded around him to shake hands. Many old men told him they had voted for him three times. There was no cheering but rather a quiet awe for the great hero of this hill country.

With grim face, Bryan stood on the gravel landing while twenty cameras snapped a picture of a rejuvenated crusader. Confidence and zeal were written over his face instead of those tired lines of the defeated old politician which were so marked when, a year ago almost to the day, he stood on the platform at Madison Square Garden with the boos and cat-calls raining down on his weary head. His face was solid and tanned and he looked 20 years younger.

Feeling Fine.

"Well, I'm here," he said, looking around at those who crowded closely. "I find the prosecution in good spirits and pleased with the decision of Judge Gore not to take the case out of the hands of the state. I'm feeling fine and will stay here until the trial is over."

Dick Hicks, druggist in Robinson's drug store, took Bryan to his home which will be turned over to the leader of the prosecution during the trial. In a second car were the associated counsel. The third vehicle in this short procession was a truck with a huge poster box on its marked. "Ask us about Tampa, the New York of the south." Entertaining boosters of this Florida west coast metropolis had tagged their billboard on the heels of the great angel of the rival east coast.

John R. Neal, chief counsel for Scopes, was in the crowd at the station. He voted three times for Bryan, but that is ancient history while the legal battle rages.

Young Scopes would have been here but he went to Chattanooga to meet his father, who is coming for the trial. His mother is too ill to come.

Arrival Is Big Event. Bryan's arrival was the big event of the day, and preparations for the trial went on. That is, they went on during the brief intervals between the curstone conferences of the residents. These little sidewalk debates spring up spontaneously all over the town. George Rappleyear will come out of Robinson's drug store after a lemonade. Some acquaintance will be standing there.

"Well, I see Bryan is here," the acquaintance says, which is his way of entering the discussion. In a minute they will be deep in religion and science.

"I believe the writers of the Bible were infallible," Rappleyear, friend of Scopes, will say.

"But the men who translated it made mistakes. When I translate a book on chemistry from German, I have to put it in my own words. Maybe the translation isn't exactly literal but it gives the main sense. That is the way the men who translated the Bible from the Greek and Hebrew had to do. You may send a telegram and a period will be dropped out by mistake. But the main sense of the telegram is correct. That's the way I think the Bible is. It is true in the main but not every single word can be taken literally."

"You think it is just as if you might not like some things about me but I'm all right on the whole," the acquaintance suggests.

"Exactly," Rappleyear agrees and the crowd, seeing there is not much of an argument, drifts away in search of a more heated conversation. But rather curiously, the people here are not bumptious bigots. They may be determined fundamentalists, but they seem to respect the other man's views as they do their own. They give each man the right to think as he pleases and do not demand that he accept their view, tenaciously as they cling to them.

This is the big surprise of the trial. It is an attitude of tolerance totally different from the spirit of the anti-evolution law which compels all to accept one view.

Another unexpected twist of sentiment here is the change toward Clarence Darrow. When he came here recently and was discovered to enjoy going about in his shirt sleeves and gaffs as they are called here, he got a favorable hearing. Then the feeling that Bainbridge Colby was the real person responsible for the effort to take the trial away from Dayton and the conviction that Darrow joined in the move reluctantly has helped Darrow's personal popularity and diminished Colby's.

In fact, Colby's polished manner and immaculate appearance has created prejudice here. A man is more popular here with a twenty-four hour beard. Exposed suspenders rank higher socially than a coat.

Colby is somewhat in the unfortunate position of the stage villain, who may be a good fellow at heart but commits the offense of wearing riding breeches and a waxed moustache. However, Colby's winning ways are doing much to nullify this feeling and Dayton concedes that he is a brilliant and gifted lawyer.

FRANKLIN URGED FOR HIGHWAY POST

Tennille, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—Friends of the Hon. H. M. Franklin, of this city, are urging upon Governor Walker his appointment to the highway board vacancy caused by the resignation of W. T. Anderson.

Colonel Franklin is one of the most prominent men in the state, a large farmer and banker, and is public spirited and progressive, being a leader in all forward looking matters. He is a firm advocate of good roads, and his hosts of friends earnestly seek this recognition in the interest of Georgia, and as a fitting tribute to a useful citizen.

BRYAN PAINTS TRIAL AS "DUEL TO DEATH"

ents and photographers. Mr. Bryan told newspapermen he was "prepared for the trial."

Mr. Bryan spoke following the dinner which was attended by John T. Scopes, members of counsel for both parties to the suit, leaders in Dayton's civic life and newspapermen. He avoided details of the Scopes case, saying the case would not be tried in the newspapers, but in court. Three points, he said, he could discuss with propriety.

Referring to the size of the town he said, "The size of the town is a matter of importance in the trial of a religious case, asked the speaker."

"Christianity began in a small town, whether we date the beginning with the birth of Christ in Bethlehem or Nazareth. Why should not this peaceful community furnish a fitting environment for the trial of a case that involves the greatest subjects that interest mankind: education and religion?"

"The newspaper critics who have been making fun of Dayton should read at the front page of the book which gave rise to this trial."

Contrast Is Given.

"The biology which the defendant was teaching has as its frontispiece a picture of a crowded city street, and just below it the picture of a farmhouse on a quiet country road. Beneath the two pictures is a suggestion upon which the city editors might reflect with profit. This is the comment that the author of the book makes upon the two pictures contrasted: 'Compare the unfavorable artificial environment of a crowded city with the more favorable environment of the country.'"

Mr. Bryan inquired into the causes of the widespread interest in the case. He pointed out that the punishment possible of being inflicted could not be more than a fine of $500 and city courts daily impose larger fines than this, he said. "What is the secret of the world's interest in this little case?" the speaker asked. "It is found in the fact that this trial uncovers an attack which for a generation has been made more or less secretly upon revealed religion, that is the Christian religion. We have no knowledge of it outside the Bible, which Christians regard as the revealed will of God. The Bible is our only standard of morality. It gives us our only conception of God and our only knowledge of Christ, the only begotten Son of God."

Attacks Religion. "Anything that attacks the Bible attacks revealed religion. A successful attack would destroy the Bible and with it revealed religion."

"The contest between evolution and Christianity is a duel to the death. It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark; from this time on it will be a death grapple in the light. For this trial is going to give information or be the means of bringing out information upon which this controversy will be decided."

"If evolution wins, Christianity goes—no suddenly, of course, but gradually, for the two cannot stand together. They are antagonistic as light and darkness; as good and evil. Hereafter evolution has been like the pestilence that walketh in darkness. Hereafter it will be the destruction that wasteth at noonday."

"Opponents of Christianity understand the character of the struggle," Mr. Bryan declared, and from henceforward Christians will understand its character, he said. "Christians, he said, believing the 'revealed religion' offers mankind the only abiding truth, will fight evolution as their only great foe. If they are wrong, they will, of course, be defeated and will be compelled to abandon the Bible as the word of God, he declared."

"If information furnished at the trial and brought out afterwards because of the trial shows evolution to be unproven and therefore unworthy of acceptance, science will have to fall back upon demonstrated truth, which has no terrors for Christianity."

Not Afraid of Truth.

"Christianity is not afraid of truth," Mr. Bryan exclaimed. "It only opposes the hypothesis put forth in the name of science but unsupported by facts."

Mr. Bryan's "third point" concerned the fundamental people of our government.

"Shall the people rule?" he cried, "if not, who shall?"

He insisted that the basic principle of the Tennessee anti-evolution law was the theory that the people, speaking through the legislature, have a right to control the public schools. He quoted figures.

"We have more than twenty-five millions of children in schools and we spend nearly two billions of dollars a year. Who is to control the expenditures of money and the teaching of children?"

No Substitute Offered.

"Some of the irreligious editors have scoffed at the idea of the schools being controlled by those who support them, but they have not yet pointed out any other control than control by the public. And they will find it difficult to set up any authority in the United States independent of the public themselves."

"Our constitutions may place restraints upon legislatures, but the people make the constitutions and can change them. Our courts may temporarily restrain legislatures, but the people create our courts and can change them. We might as well face the fundamental fact that in the United States the people are the source of power—the only source and will in the end control."

"Arguments must therefore be addressed to the people. Expressions of contempt for the people are not sufficient and they do not show the spirit that we have a right to expect in Americans."

Clothing manufacturers of England are complaining that men there are demanding styles like those shown in American moving pictures.

FIRST OF SENATE COMMITTEES MEET

With committees beginning to function and several meetings called for today, the state senate has entered active work of the 60-day legislative grind, and its attention from today on will be occupied with important matters.

Several newly-appointed committees met Tuesday following adjournment of the senate session for the purpose of organizing. The W. and A. committee was one of these, and decided to hold a joint session at 2:30 o'clock today with the same committee of the house on a public hearing on the Atlanta viaducts bill. Senator Carl N. Guess is chairman of the senate W. and A. committee and Miss Bessie Kempton heads the house body.

The education committee of the senate, Senator T. L. Knight, chairman, will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning, while the fish and game committee, Senator Picken, chairman, will meet at 9:30 o'clock. The agriculture committee, Senator H. L. D. Hughes, chairman, will meet at 10 o'clock.

Other Committees Meet. Judiciary No. 2 and the special judiciary committee met Tuesday at 10 o'clock. The W. and A. committee and effective organization.

Ten bills were introduced in the senate Tuesday, together with two resolutions, one from the house. The senate resolution was adopted, giving assent of the state to terms of the act of congress authorizing more complete endowment of agricultural experiment stations. This resolution was submitted by the committee on agriculture, Senator Hughes, chairman.

The senate held a brief session Tuesday, introduction of bills being followed by a joint meeting with the house to hear the message of Governor Walker. The house resolution which was adopted by the senate Tuesday provided for the joint session.

Would Halt Floggings. Senator Hutcheson, of the 29th, introduced a measure Tuesday prohibiting the crime of conspiracy to provide a penalty of from two to ten years in the penitentiary where two or more persons kidnap a person for the purpose of assault and battery. The bill is aimed to check floggings which have been numerous over the state recently, Senator Hutcheson said.

The measure to abolish ten of the twelve-district A. & M. schools which had already been introduced in the house was introduced in the senate Tuesday by Senators Ricketson, of the 19th, and Clary, of the 29th.

The children's code commission bill providing for changes in the local adoption law was introduced by Senator Luttrell, of the 25th, this being the last of eight bills recommended by the commission.

A local bill relating to public schools at Warrenton, providing for the schools in the county to be turned back to the county instead of the town, was approved by the house committee on education at a meeting in the comptroller general's office Tuesday afternoon.

Representative Rivers, of Lanier, was made secretary of the committee and Tuesday and Thursday morning at 9 o'clock fixed as the regular meeting hour of the committee.

It was decided to hold a hearing on a school bill which will be introduced from Richmond county for a raise in the tax levy from 10 to 12 mills on July 22.

Eight bills were recommended by the house special judiciary committee in a session Tuesday afternoon. Five bills were deferred until the next meeting to be held at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning.

Eight Bills Approved. Bills approved followed. To change the time of holding superior court in Clinch county.

To change the time of holding superior court in Burke county.

To amend the act creating the city court of Albany.

To repeal an act establishing the city court of Albany.

To alter, amend and revise the several laws relating to the city court of Savannah.

To amend the act establishing the city court of Newnan.

To provide for the holding of four terms yearly by the superior court of Turner county.

To amend the act creating the city court of Reidsville.

To change the term of the superior court of Jasper county.

Senator W. M. Sapp, of the forty-third district, was made secretary of the senate W. & A. committee at the organization meeting Tuesday.

TWO PERSONS DIE FROM HEAT WAVE IN CAPITAL CITY

Washington, July 7.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and eight prostrated today by the heat wave which has gripped the capital for several days.

Officially the mercury touched 97 degree mark, but thermometers on Pennsylvania avenue registered as high as 104 degrees at 4 p. m.

Government clerks employed on the top floors of temporary buildings were dismissed at noon and several government departments stopped work half an hour earlier than usual.

FOUR ARE PROSTRATED IN NEW YORK CITY.

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Jumping 12 degrees in five hours the temperature this afternoon reached 90 degrees, prostrating four persons in this city. One death was recorded in Hoboken.

U. S. TAX RECORDS WILL BE OPENED ABOUT SEPTEMBER 1

Washington, July 7.—Income tax payments will be opened about September 1 for public inspection, it was said at the internal revenue bureau Tuesday. It had been planned to open the books during July, but there has been delay in gathering the records.

GAIN IN BUSINESS SHOWN IN SURVEY OF 30 INDUSTRIES

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Surveys of the 30 leading industries in the territory covered by the Atlantic States shippers' advisory board indicate an average increase of 5 per cent in business for the third quarter of 1925 as compared with last year. W. L. L. Banham, general chairman of the board, reported today. The 20 railroads serving this district reported transportation facilities in excellent condition to handle the increased volume of trade. These reports will feature the meeting of the Atlantic states board in Atlantic City, July 9.

A. & ST. A. B. ACTIVE WITH IMPROVEMENTS

Panama City, Fla., July 7.—(Special)—Reconstruction of the Atlanta and St. Andrews Bay railroad, running from this city to Dothan, Ala., ostensibly to furnish track heavy enough for Pullman service.

In well-informed circles, however, it is believed that the work in reality is the first step looking to extension of the line northward either under the present ownership or by one of the major systems that intends to acquire the property.

When first built, about fifteen years ago, the A. & St. A. B. line, in which Atlanta capital was heavily interested, was planned to ultimately run to Columbus, Ga., where it would connect with the Central of Georgia, the Seaboard and the Southern, in addition to the present connections at Dothan with the Atlantic Coast Line and the Central of Georgia and at Chattahoochee with the Louisville and Nashville.

L. C. Baldwin, of Marietta, his son, is at his bedside.

Boykin Launches War on Alleged Gambling Houses

Acting on information supplied by Solicitor General John A. Boykin, the Fulton county grand jury Tuesday returned fourteen indictments against a group of men charged with gambling in a residence at 150 Waverly way, occupied by L. B. "Peachtree" Williams. An indictment was returned against Williams charging him with operating and maintaining a gambling house, and he was held under $5,000 bond. H. C. Benson, alias Duffy, and J. W. Crafton were indicted on the same charge and held under bonds of $2,000 each.

Charges of gaming were obtained in indictments against the following men, all of whom, together with Williams, Crafton and Benson, were arrested in a raid made on the Williams home last Saturday night: E. R. Roberts, Bob Hogg, C. P. Weston, A. Sparks, G. C. Withers, Fred Rushing, George Hendricks, C. A. Richards, George Morris, William Jackson, Max Flexner and Glen House.

Opens War on Gamblers. Simultaneously with return of these indictments, the solicitor announced that a campaign would be waged by his office to break up gambling in Atlanta. The case against the men taken into custody in Williams' home was handled by Bert Donaldson and Marvin Baker, investigators employed in the office of the solicitor.

"We are going after leaders in the operation of professional gambling houses," Solicitor Boykin declared. "This new development in gaming has come after a long period of quiet and the situation in many respects is alarming."

According to reports received by Solicitor Boykin, professional gamblers have flocked to Atlanta after the close of the winter season in Florida.

Numerous Reports. "We have received numerous reports of young men of Atlanta being lured by professional gamblers, and we are going to break up this practice," he said.

The "gambling syndicate" has been operating in quiet and exclusive residential sections of Atlanta, according to the solicitor, regularly "steering" being employed and each place maintaining a "house staff" to handle victims.

The "steerers" are equipped with automobiles to transport victims to and from the gambling houses, according to information obtained by the investigators.

"It is our hope to close up every professional gambling place in Atlanta and to prosecute every man connected with them," the solicitor said.

2 FIRE INSPECTORS NAMED BY BOARD

W. A. Pope and M. H. Carter, former drivers in the fire department, were promoted to fire inspectors by the fire committee of city council at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon. Both will rank as lieutenants and draw lieutenants' pay. Election of both was unanimous.

Pope will succeed W. D. Benson, who, by failing to return to duty following expiration of his vacation period last week, automatically resigned. Carter will take the place of W. R. Berryhill, who, at his own request, has been transferred to another department by Chief W. B. Cody.

Pope and Carter will begin their new duties immediately. The former has been in the fire department for 13 years, having served as a driver during that time. Carter entered the department in 1907 as a private and later was made a driver at No. 7 engine house.

Chief Cody explained to the committee that Mr. Benson's vacation ended Friday but that he had not reported for duty and it is understood that he has decided to accept a pension and retire from the service.

Mr. Berryhill, he stated, has asked that he be transferred to other duties and provision already has been made to place him in one of the engine houses as a fireman. Both former inspectors have been in the department for many years.

Harry W. Rush and William Roy Ham were elected to the force as substitutes.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT SECRETARY SUCCUMBS

Paris, July 7.—(AP)—Eugene Pierre, 77, died today in his apartment of the chamber of deputies, of which he has been secretary general for 40 years.

During this period he is credited with never having missed a sitting of the chamber. He was an authority on its procedure and a depository of its traditions. Stationed behind the speaker's armchair he kept that official and those who substituted for him constantly posted on the intricacies of directing debates.

CHARLES D. GOLDING SUCCUMBS IN TEXAS

News of the death Monday night of Charles D. Golding, vice president of the Penden Iron and Steel company, in Houston, Texas, has been received here. Mr. Golding was the father-in-law of Mrs. Dudley S. Golding, formerly Miss Georgia Rice, of Atlanta.

He is survived by his widow; two sons, Fred Golding, of Houston, Texas, and Dudley Golding, of Wichita Falls, Texas.

EXCHANGE CLUB INDORSE LIBRARY SCHOOL PROPOSAL

Adoption of resolutions indorsing the proposed expenditure of funds by the city for support of the library school of the Atlanta Carnegie library, featured a meeting Tuesday of the Exchange club at the Henry Grady hotel.

The resolutions were drafted by a committee composed of Clyde M. Wood, Grover G. Maughon and Dan McIntyre.

A musical program presented by Mrs. S. T. Townsell, violinist, and Miss Abbot, pianist, were features of the luncheon program.

At the next weekly meeting of the club Miss Irene Dunn and Miss Edith Moore, of the Municipal Opera company, will entertain with musical selections.

Plans were formulated for the Exchange club party to be held Tuesday night, July 14.

OFFICERS OF 122D MEET AT LUNCHEON AT ANSLEY HOTEL

The regular weekly luncheon meeting of officers of the 122d infantry, national guard regiment, will be held at 12:30 o'clock today in the Rainbow room of the Ansley hotel, with Colonel Charles H. Cox, regimental commander, presiding.

Matters dealing with the regiment's summer encampment on Tybee Island, beginning July 17, will be taken up, and other subjects of special interest to guardsmen will be discussed.

2 MEN NEAR DEATH BY ELECTROCUTION

Cartersville, Ga., July 7.—(Special).—B. F. Nichols, 20, of Marietta, and E. W. Taylor, 27, of Gainesville, members of a signal construction gang on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, came near being electrocuted Tuesday afternoon, when a wire of the signal line which they were laying through this territory suddenly gave way and fell across a high tension circuit of the Georgia Railway and Power company, three miles south of Cartersville.

Ray Bond, 18, of Kennesaw, was painfully burned on the left hand and right foot but his injuries were not considered serious. Nichols suffered a severe burn on the right shoulder and both feet, while Taylor had his left shoulder and one foot badly burned.

Nichols and Taylor were knocked unconscious and revived only after desperate efforts at resuscitation carried out under the direction of W. E. Nichols, of Marietta, foreman of the construction crew.

The injured men were rushed to Cartersville and after receiving first-aid treatment from Dr. W. E. Wolford, were carried to Isis-Escher sanitarium, Atlanta, for treatment.

CROWING ROOSTERS WOULD BE BANNED BY AUGUSTA LAW

Augusta, July 7.—"Crowing roosters" would be banned in Augusta, according to a petition presented by a citizen to city council here last night asking that an ordinance be passed forbidding the fowls to be allowed within the city limits.

No Sir!! not genuine!! unless in this Bottle

Imitated But Not Duplicated

OUR motto has always been to sell a QUALITY drink, and, as far as possible, to protect the public from substitution of some other drink for NuGrape. For that reason we have a specially designed bottle so that you may KNOW you are not getting NuGrape unless in THIS bottle. Our name and our drink have been widely imitated; its popularity is envied, but its flavor can NOT be duplicated!

HOW TO WIN!

STUDY the shape of the bottle in this advertisement. Drink from it at your home and at the many soft drink stands. See it on the painted walls. Then suggest what you think is a suitable name for the bottle, using simple words to best describe its shape and appearance. Do not undertake to describe NuGrape—it IS "A FLAVOR YOU CAN'T FORGET." Let your answer be one word or not more than ten words. Submit as many answers as you like, but make sure that they are in the hands of this company to be decided upon not later than midnight, August 15th, 1925.

Winners will be announced in the Atlanta papers August 30th, 1925.

Send all answers with your name and address to

CONTEST DEPARTMENT

NuGrape Company of America

80 Nelson Street Atlanta, Ga.

Name This Bottle!

WE are giving away $1,000.00 in cash divided into 242 prizes for the best names suggested for our bottle, which appears in this advertisement. The contest is open to every man, woman boy and girl. There are no restrictions as to who shall enter.

Familiarize yourself with the distinctive shape and appearance of this bottle and try your skill. We want you to be so familiar with the shape and appearance of this bottle that you will be able to KNOW that you are served NuGrape when you call for it. We do not agree to accept any name which may be suggested but prizes will be awarded to those submitting the best suggested names as well as the apparent effort displayed.

Hereafter NuGrape will only be bottled in this bottle. This bottle represents QUALITY. Demand this bottle and get the BEST!

MONDELL RESIGNS WAR FINANCE JOB

Swampscott, Mass., July 7.—(AP)—Frank W. Mondell, submitted his resignation to President Coolidge today as a member of the war finance corporation.

Mr. Mondell advised the president of his intention to retire from the government service while a luncheon guest at White House.

The resignation will become effective July 15, and after that date Mr. Mondell expects to open a law office in Washington.

For many years Mr. Mondell was a member of the house from Wyoming and for four years prior to his retirement in March, 1923, was Republican leader in the house. He was permanent chairman of the Republican national convention in Cleveland last year.

ANONYMOUS RAP AT VIADUCTS SCORED

parties will be welcomed and given full opportunity to speak for or against the proposal.

The resolution simply allows the city of Atlanta to build viaducts over the state's railroad property at Pryor street and Central avenue. Plans and specifications must be approved by the governor, the public service commission and a special legislative committee of nine, under provision of the resolution. The state's approval is also conditional on written consent of the present lessees of the W. & A. railroad before construction of the proposed viaducts is begun.

While some opposition to this proposal has been instigated by special interests, it is believed that there will be little actual opposition in the house or senate. Self-evident benefit to the state in enhancement of property values, including railroad property at the union station and the capitol itself, is believed certain to follow this big improvement.

In addition, it has been demonstrated that traffic conditions in the city make necessary this move to relieve congestion.

With reference to the anonymous circulars, the statement issued Tuesday night by the Fulton and DeKalb delegations says:

"The apparent effort of these circulars is to create the impression that in some mysterious way the state's property in Atlanta will be damaged by building bridges over what are now grade crossings, though a careful study of the matter will show such plan to be of immense benefit to the state."

"Who should Atlanta wish to injure the state's property? Is not the state's property in Atlanta dependent for its value upon the prosperity, accessibility and desirability generally of the property in the vicinity of these proposed improvements?"

"If these grade crossings remain at this place much longer, the state's property will be absolutely valueless save a railroad yard, and the value of its capital building in the immediate vicinity will also be impaired."

Values Decreasing

It is shown that the Union depot property owned by the state is going down in value every day because of the grade crossings and because of the drift of property values away from this section as a result of difficulty in crossing the tracks and avoidance of this part of the city by traffic. As this would be changed if the viaducts are built, it is stated, and the property, along with all other property in that section of the city, would immediately show rapid enhancement in value and join with other sections of the city in constant growth in realty values.

"Were it not for the fact that the state of Georgia owns the state railroad," it is declared, "no one would question the right of the city to develop itself and the state by building these viaducts. The right of building bridges over dangerous railroad crossings is inherent in every city. No one would question the right of a city as a general proposition to bridge a dangerous railroad crossing, but the act would always be applauded."

Referring again to the anonymous circulars which have been distributed among members of the assembly, the statement says:

Hotel Lessees Blamed.

"While we do not know who wrote these circulars, rumor has it that these circulars come from lessees of a local hotel in the vicinity of the proposed bridges, the lessees living out of the city. Think of this proposition. A couple of men having a short lease on a hotel in Atlanta are to block an improvement which benefits the whole state as well as the city of Atlanta, and the blocking of this improvement is because of some temporary inconvenience that the work may entail on their business. In this connection, we wish to state that the owner of the same hotel is strongly in favor of these bridges."

The statement issued Tuesday night is signed by Miss Fessie Keumpton, J. O. Wood and Frank A. Hooper, Jr., representatives from Fulton county; by James C. Davis, Paul L. Lindsay

WALLER GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

mistaken for a man named Ab Davis, who, it is claimed, was sought because he had "turned up moonshiners."

Ed Dixon, Fayette county policeman, testified to overhearing a conversation in the Fairburn jail between Waller and his wife, when Waller requested his wife to see Oscar Dutton and tell him to "stand by me one more time."

Joe Foster, an inmate of the Fairburn jail, testified that Waller asked him to go, when he was released from jail, to see Dutton and tell him to "keep quiet."

Oscar Dutton, who last week in open court during progress of his own trial arose and withdrew his plea of "not guilty" and entered a plea of "guilty," was not placed on the stand today in the Waller trial.

The Waller jury was composed of J. E. McElwainey, Jack McElwainey, J. W. Cochran, J. C. Banks, L. J. Plunkett, E. P. Jones, Ira White, E. L. Farrar, D. J. Campbell, Crawford Howell, J. P. Jones and L. C. McLean.

Waller was represented by Lester C. Dickson, of Fayetteville, and Frank A. Hooper, Jr., of Atlanta, and Emmett Owen, solicitor general, was assisted in the prosecution by L. S. Camp, of Fairburn.

History of Case.

James P. Langston, a mail carrier from Fairburn, whose route included Fayette county, was found dead beside his car more than two years ago. As nothing was missing from the car, it developed that the car was not the motive and officers worked upon the theory that Langston was killed through mistake, that another man, said to have "turned up" moonshiners, was the man sought. Basing their search on that theory, officers a month ago arrested Whittle, Dutton and Waller in connection with the crime.

A special session of the grand jury indicted Whittle and Dutton for the murder and Waller for accessory before the fact.

LISTENING IN AT MONKEY TRIAL

tion league has posters in store windows bearing pictures of apes, one labeled, "Is This Your Grandmother?" and "And This Your Grandfather?"

As the Royal Palm pulled out after depositing Bryan, three men on the observation platform grinned at the crowd. "Hurrah for Scopes," they yelled.

Robinson's drug store, where the argument took place that started the trial, is a modern emporium with a petaloid soda fountain. The same chain store drugs are displayed on the counter that you see in the drug store at Forty-second and Broadway.

William J. Bryan's appearance was marked only by the presence of a small round snout pot on the tip of his nose as if in approaching Dayton he might have glued his face to the window to see what kind of a reception awaited him.

This evolution argument is simple enough to Squire Wilbur who seems to think more regularly than he shaves.

"It used to be down with drinking and up with thinking," he said. "Now it's up with drinking and down with thinking."

A garage mechanic is getting rich by moulding medals and watch fobs bearing the base relief of a sportive monkey wearing a sailor straw hat and smoking a cigar.

Darwins are thick here. St. are listed in the telephone book and others are scattered in the mountains. The Darwins have lived in Tennessee for years. Tradition says they are collateral descendants of Charles, who really started this trial in England 75 years ago.

A local movie magnate is making the most of the competition caused by the trial. He is advertising movies of Scopes, and two pictures, "Darwin Was Right" and "The Last Man."

After lunch, William Jennings Bryan, in his shirt sleeves, went over to Robinson's drug store, sat down at the table where the evolution argument started and ordered a strawberry ice cream soda.

The flavor was chosen in tribute to the great strawberry industry in the Dayton district.

The chief defense counsel, John R. Neal, is here but the remainder of the staff will begin drifting in later. Dudley Field Malone arrives Wednesday. Clarence Darrow Thursday and Bainbridge Colby probably about the same time.

Photographers taking Bryan's picture on his arrival asked him to wave his huge pig helmet.

"No monkey business here," Bryan snapped, holding his grim pose.

Bryan and young Scopes whom he is to prosecute met at the banquet for the second time in their lives. The first meeting was several years ago when Bryan presented a diploma to Scopes in the high school graduating class at Salem, Ill. Scopes grew up in Salem, where Bryan also spent part of his early life.

TRAIN KILLS TWO NEAR AMERICUS

Americus, Ga., July 7.—(Special.) J. Calvin Carter, Sr., 71, prominent Sumter county farmer, and Eugene Duckworth, overseer of one of the Carter plantations, were instantly killed this morning about 10 o'clock when the truck in which they were riding was struck and completely demolished by a Central of Georgia passenger train, en route from Columbus to Americus, at a crossing about two miles from Americus.

Eugene Duckworth, Jr., young son of the driver of the truck, riding on the rear of the truck, leaped to the ground when he saw the train approaching and escaped injury. His father and Carter were knocked some 20 feet and buried beneath the wreckage of the truck.

The crossing where the accident occurred is a treacherous one, an embankment preventing travelers seeing an approaching train until it is nearly upon them. Several other fatal accidents have occurred at this point.

The occupants of the truck had been to Americus and were on their way home when the accident occurred. Carter has been one of the county's most prominent and useful men.

Many years he was a member of the county board of education and when his death was announced to the board, which was in session today, proceedings were halted for five minutes out of respect to one who had formerly presided over its deliberations.

Carter is survived by 10 children, several brothers and sisters, including Mrs. David Jenkins, of Griffin.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the home on the Carter plantation.

Duckworth is survived by his widow and six children. Funeral plans for Duckworth have not been announced.

COAL TRADE ROW THREATENS PEACE

without serious trouble. But in Great Britain, where the coal industry is vital, the situation is complicated by a railway slump, due mainly to a decline in the transportation of coal.

The general unemployment is already critical, workers are discouraged, industry is depressed, and a coal strike would be a tremendous blow to the welfare of the country.

Fascist Grows Active

Unions in various trades are meeting throughout the country to consider plans for the dark days ahead of them. At the conference of the National Union of Railwaymen, in Southport, the president declared that not only was the mining industry the worst in memory, but that shipbuilding, textiles and railways were similar. He reflected what seems to be the general attitude of the workers when he said the workmen had sacrificed enough and that the time had come for the other side to begin making sacrifices.

Indicative of conditions in other industries, employers in the wool trade are trying to negotiate a new agreement which would mean lower wages for a quarter of a million workers.

With danger of class dissension growing it is interesting to note the increased activity of British fascists. Knots of black-shirted youths have been seen frequently in the streets in the last few days and there are reports every Sunday of fights between communists and fascists at the famous outdoor meetings in Hyde park.

STRIKE IS PREDICTED BY JOURNAL EDITOR

Atlantic City, N. J., July 7.—A strike of anthracite coal miners, probably beginning September 1, will result from the conference here Thursday between miners and operators, according to Ellis Searles, of Indianapolis, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, the official organ of the United Mine Workers of America.

"The anthracite mine owners will refuse to grant the demands of the miners, involving wage increases and complete recognition of the union, including the 'check-off,' Searles, who arrived here Tuesday, said. 'There will be a strike, but not an extended one, in the anthracite districts beginning September 1.'

Searles denied that the propositions adopted recently at the tri-district convention of miners in Scranton was aimed only at the establishment of a 'trading basis.'

"The miners are thoroughly in earnest in their demands for increased wages and the demands were not made for trading purposes," the union spokesman said. "There is no thought of a renewal of the old agreement as a compromise. The miners feel and declare that the present wage is too low because it does not give them a living income."

The miners do not intend to accept a reduction in their wages nor will they consent to a renewal of the old agreement. Of course, no one can say accurately what will take place at the conference but the miners, and there will be a cessation of work in the anthracite fields beginning September 1."

Tickets will be sold for all regular trains Saturday, July 11th, also for special train leaving Atlanta 8:00 P. M. (Central Time), July 11th. Make sleeping car reservations now. Georgia Railroad City Ticket Office, 46 N. Broad St. Walnut 2726.

NEW YORK HOME RULE LAWS UNDERMINED

New York, July 7.—(AP)—The whole structure upon which home rule for cities in New York state has been built recently has been declared illegal by the appellate division of the state supreme court. A decision rendered yesterday nullifies every ordinance passed by local governing bodies of these cities since the spring of 1924 because a home rule amendment to the state constitution, adopted in 1923 is declared void. A home rule act by the legislature set up machinery to put the amendment into effect.

The amendment in guaranteeing to cities the right of municipal government, forbids the legislature to pass any law regarding cities that was special and not general in effect.

Among the 17 statutes passed by the New York city municipal assembly and now held null and void, are those providing for general municipal ownership and operation of bus lines, salary increases, and pensions and transfer of the control of taxicabs from the license department to the police department.

New York city officials have served notice that the decision will be appealed.

Does your husband demand hot bread -in hot weather?

FRANKLY, we expect this advertisement to be read by your husband, for he is the "gentleman" that sentences you to fifteen long hours of hot, sweltering labor with every fifty pound sack of flour that comes into your home. Do you suppose that he ever thinks of you and how you are working away in a hot, stuffy kitchen baking, just because he likes his "hot bread"? Will he ever own up to this imposition on you? But, perhaps he is innocent of any blame. Many men never seem to think of a wife's home labors. Why don't you have a heart to heart talk with him about bread?—(wouldn't it be nice if he mentioned it first?)

Every one of the family will thoroughly enjoy the big, flakey slices of rich tasty Merita Bread. You can serve it so much easier than hot bread, and after all it is really better for your health. Try it for a change.

Two sizes 10c and 15c.

Why Bake Bread during Hot Weather?

It isn't fair for any one to have to bake, bake, bake—all the time. Now that hot weather is here, why not serve Merita Bread and give up baking? It makes fine toast, delicious sandwiches and is excellent for luncheon and dinner meals—and your freedom will be thoroughly enjoyed.

Pinchot's Western Junket Is Destined To Pave Way To Enter Senatorial Race

Governor Declared Certain Candidate To Succeed Senator Pepper; To Tour Home State.

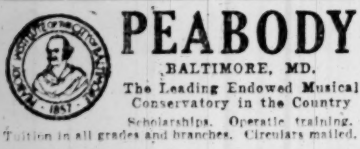

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Philadelphia, July 7.—The politically sophisticated in Pennsylvania, both the friends of Governor Pinchot and his enemies, confirm the surmise that his present tour of the west is designed, so the phrase goes, as a nationwide springboard from which to launch a candidacy for the seat in the senate now held by George W. Pepper. Some, chiefly his opponents, go further, saying the western tour is the timely beginning of an ambitious program in which the senator's only one step, and the real goal is a fight for the republican presidential nomination in 1928.

Pinchot is now in the third year of his four-year term as governor. Under the Pennsylvania law he cannot succeed himself. He will be 60 years old the 11th of next month and the assumption is practically universal in Pennsylvania that he is not willing, at that age, either to retire or to accept without energetic resistance the limited role of a reformer from the lesser leverage of private life. Many of the governor's opponents attributed presidential aspirations to him two years ago. If he had them he was deterred, as two considerations. One was the obvious difficulty of taking the nomination away from Coolidge; the other was a kind of pledge he made to the people of Pennsylvania when he was a candidate for governor that he would serve out the four-year term.

Plans Tour of State.

That Pinchot will at least contend for Pepper's seat is universally accepted. After his present western tour he will make an intensive county-to-county tour of his home state. In his home state tour he will deal with local questions, but the enemy he will attack will be partly the same, for Secretary Mellon is a large figure in the Pennsylvania republican organization.

Pinchot has already made in the Pennsylvania legislature, and condemns the legislature for ignoring the governor's electrical program. "It will not be Governor Pinchot's fault if every hamlet in Pennsylvania is not thoroughly acquainted with his scheme for supplying villages and farms with electric power. What he fears is the building up of a tremendous monopoly if there shall be no restricting legislation. . . . It is a tremendous task that he has undertaken and it will meet—already meeting—with opposition from companies interested in individual prospects of magnitude. . . . The governor's appeal will be of special interest to the farmers. We have an idea that he will enjoy himself thoroughly when he gets out among them."

SAVANNAH PLANS FOR DEVELOPMENT MEET ON JULY 15

Savannah, Ga., July 7.—Plans were started today by Mayor Hull's office to entertain a large number of state legislators, who will likely come to Savannah to attend the organizing of the Georgia Development and Publicity Association on July 15.

There was a meeting of Savannah members of the program committee called to outline plans for the business and entertainment of the visitors when they arrive.

Mr. Saussey left tonight for Atlanta to invite Governor Walker, Mayor Sims and J. J. Brown to be the speakers at this meeting.

Three thousand invitations have been mailed from the board of trade, and over 200 acceptances have been received.

NATIONAL BANKS RECORD PROSPERITY
New York, July 7.—Record-breaking prosperity is revealed by bank statements issued in answer to a call of the comptroller of the currency for the condition of national banks as of June 30.

Resources, deposits and undivided profits of the large New York institutions exceed the previous high totals of 1919 and 1920 boom years. In Chicago, state and national banks showed combined increases in deposits of $127,000,000.

The deposits of the National City bank, the largest in the country, exceeded $900,000,000 for the first time. The total in the statement submitted to the comptroller is $910,903,905, a gain of more than $50,000,000 since April 6.

EISEMAN BUILDING LEASED BY MCCORRY

Further evidence of Atlanta's soundness and material prosperity came Tuesday with announcement of the consummation of a deal by which the McCrory Stores corporation, of New York, one of the biggest companies of its kind in the world, leases for a period of years the old Eiseman building at Nos. 11, 13, 15 and 17 Whitehall street for an aggregate rental of $1,650,000.

This announcement was made by the Adair Realty and Trust Co., after the deal was closed by Henry Robinson and Warren H. Toole, of the chain stores leasing department of the McCrory company. It is understood the McCrory company will take possession in August. The Woolworth company, which recently occupied the ground floor and basement, has moved to new quarters directly across the street.

Unusual interest is attached to the coming of the McCrory company to Atlanta in business circles. This company operates 170 stores in all parts of the country and is one of the largest chain store mercantile companies in the world.

According to information in Atlanta, plans have been perfected for extensive improvements and renovations in the building. The McCrory company will occupy several stories and will establish in Atlanta one of its model stores.

Another interesting feature of the lease is the establishment of a new high mark in leases for Whitehall street property. This deal shows that Atlanta is ahead of other cities her size in rental values according to real estate men.

This section of Whitehall street has long been the center of activity of 5 and 10 cents stores and the McCrory company, which retails articles priced at 5 cents to $1, will provide another big business of this character. J. B. McCrory, head of the company, made several trips to Atlanta to investigate local conditions before closing the deal for the lease.

The deal marks the second big deal.

FRENCH LEADERS STRIVE FOR PLACE IN DEBT PARLEY

Paris, July 7.—(AP)—There is sharp competition for membership on the French commission which will go to Washington within a few weeks to discuss the funding of the French debt to the United States. This competition is delaying the government's announcement of the personnel.

The only candidates who now appear virtually certain of places on the commission are M. Franklin Bouillon, chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies, and Henry Berenger, budget reporter for the senate finance committee. It is understood that Louis Loucheur, former minister of commerce, is a candidate for presidency of the mission. Former Premier Herriot also has been spoken of for that post but his duties as president of the chamber of deputies prevent his prolonged absence from this country.

It is now thought possible that Finance Minister Caillaux will reserve the first place on the commission for himself if he finds he cannot go personally to Washington, but can direct the work from Paris by having all important decisions reported to him by wire.

FEDERATION WOMEN FAVOR NEW BILLS

Resolutions approving and endorsing the Georgia children's code commission bill, introduced in the legislature, were adopted at a meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs on Monday. The bill calls for improved laws beneficial to children of the state.

The resolutions characterize Georgia laws relating to children as "sadly in need of revision," and state that passage of the pending bill will insure the rights of the innocent child and make for better citizenship.

This year under which New York mercantile companies establish connections in Atlanta. The first was made public early in the year when Asa G. Chandler announced he would erect a modern six-story building on the northwest corner of Peachtree and Ellis streets to house the new Davison-Paxon-Stokes store to be affiliated with R. H. Macy and Co., of New York.

Wealthy Realtor Seeks Daughter In Advertisement

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Some Cinderella, in place of a prince for a husband, is going to have all the advantages that riches can give in return for love of an adopted father.

Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate operator, has advertised for a pretty, refined girl about 14 years old to be brought up as his own child, with "every opportunity, education, travel, kindness and love."

His office has been flooded with applications. After he sees and talks with prospective daughters, they have a Cinderella treat whether they meet with his approval or not. In place of a coach and four horses that turn into mice, they are sent home in a big limousine with liveried chauffeur and footman.

Browning is already the foster-father of two girls, Marjorie Gloria and Dorothy Sunshine Browning. After he divorced his wife in Paris last year it was agreed that Marjorie was to stay with Mrs. Browning while he retained Dorothy. He wants another girl, principally to grow up as a playmate to Dorothy, who was lifted into the lap of luxury six years ago. "Children of the poor, Mr. Browning believes, are healthier and do better in world affairs than children of the rich. Dorothy's companions will be taken into the home on trial for a month or six weeks.

In town Dorothy's playground is a private roof garden 12 stories above the street, with an artificial lake for bathing.

When the first girl applicant was asked if she wishes to leave her mother she shook her head, while tears streamed down her face, but the ride back home, she said was the best she ever had. Most mothers pleaded poverty for wanting to part with their children.

A boy 14 years old wrote, including a picture of himself holding a violin. "I will amuse you and the little girl," he wrote, "playing the violin for you. When I grow up to be an artist, I will pay you back."

Rabbit Maranville Named Manager of Chicago Cubs

(Rabbit) Maravelli appointed manager of the Chicago Cubs today, suggesting that the club should become the third youngest team in the major leagues. The new pilot of the Cubs, one of the greatest shortstops in the history of the game, said he expects to do something with the team by his first year in the lineup every day. The stockholders of this new team are playing managers.

The appointment of Maravelli will be a surprise to the baseball world, league, Hornsby, of St. Louis; Bancroft, of the Boston club; and Wheat, of the Chicago White Sox. There are five in the league.

Harris is the youngest and Bancroft a year younger than the Rabbit. Maranville will be 34 years old next November and gets into the limelight as a manager after 14 years of professional ball. Although Maranville has been rated as a veteran for several years, he has not been in the years years he is not particularly old, as baseball ages go.

Officials of the Cubs had decided to let Maranville go not to renew Killifer's contract for the ensuing year. It was explained that the reason for the shift in managers was due to the demand of the stockholders for a playing manager, which has increased since Hornsby became leader of the Cardinals.

President William Veck, who advised Maranville of his selection in more accidents than have the Cubs. Maranville himself sustained a broken leg just before the start of the season, and the club has retained until the expiration of his contract, the last day of the year, in the capacity of scout.

Maranville's contract as manager became operative today until the end of the season. If he succeeds in bringing the Chicago Cubs to a higher position in the standing, he unquestionably will be given another contract for 1926.

Honesty Is Main Bulwark Of Newspapers of Nation, New York Editor Asserts

Publishers Are Urged To Maintain Standards of Integrity Which Has Won Public Confidence.

Asheville, N. C., July 7.—(P)—"In this country our press as a whole is independent and honest, free from the charge of venality and for that reason exercises an influence and power that constitutes it one of the main bulwarks of our liberty," declared Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, addressing the publishers this morning. "We must be ever watchful that this reputation be preserved—deserved—and allow no sinister or ulterior influences to exercise any control over our reading columns."

"The confidence of people in the integrity of your newspaper is a matter that cannot be too carefully safeguarded," asserted the editor in discussing the relative value of types of news service. He colored, exclusive use by papers of syndicated matter and of news services which were "privately controlled" as giving an opportunity for "subtle" propaganda and "the promotion of private interests." He advised editors against "in the matter of circulation—the wild chase for numbers," appealed to the reading public through features which might "overburden" the paper and really prove a blemish on its quality and its attraction to the legitimate news-reading clientele.

Very Little Value

"There is no question in my own mind that no small percentage of feature matter in which newspapers so largely indulge, will, on careful investigation, be found to have little or no value and very limited appeal. I think publishers should take pains to acquaint themselves with the source, the personnel and the methods that are employed in these services, and to retain for themselves voice and control over the matter that is served them."

The speaker reviewed his more than 50 years of newspaper work, beginning with his connection with the Knoxville Journal and "a practical school of journalism" conducted by Captain William R. Hale, that noble old man who still wields a facile pen at the age of 86 on that paper. He mentioned numerous editors of the south with whom he had been associated during those years.

"These were and are men of proven capacity," declared the speaker as he named nearly two score men known in the newspaper world of many states of the south and some whose names were known over the nation. "Men with resplendent records of self-sacrifice and industry; leaders in their states and in their communities, always in the forefront of every movement looking to the welfare and prosperity of their people; men of marked by distinct personality and endowed with the most admirable attributes of the human kind. Oh, what a privilege and inspiration it was to know them and to have contact with them and to have enjoyed their friendship."

Newspaper Leaders

Among those mentioned by the speaker were: "Parson" B. C. W. R. A. J. Ricks, the Ramages, C. W. Charlton and John M. Fleming, all of Knoxville; the Cowardins, Bryan and Ellisons, of Richmond; Carter Glass, of Lynchburg; Murray and Five-Ash, of Norfolk; Dawson and Hemphill, of Charleston; Gonzales, of Columbia; Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh; Jones, of Charlotte; Pat Walsh, of Augusta; Estill and Stovall, of Savannah; Stockton and Jones, of Jacksonville; the Hemphills, of Atlanta; Evan P. JUDICIARY GROUPS CONSIDER BILLS

After organizing Tuesday afternoon, general judiciary committee No. 1 of the house disposed of several bills and adjourned subject to the call of the chairman, J. W. Cullpepper, of Fayette. Mrs. Viola Ross Napier, of Bibb, was named secretary.

A bill introduced by the Laurens county delegation, which would allow superior court judges to call for revision of jury lists in their circuits at any time they desired, but making a biennial revision mandatory, was approved for passage. Under the present law judges do not have this right, but the lists are revised biennially in most counties.

Two bills by Stovall, of Elbert—one providing that any county which desires may call a special election on exemption of new industries from taxation for a period of five years, and the other making the same provisions for municipalities—were submitted and referred to a special committee for revision and technical perfection.

JURY MAY CLOSE BANK CASE TODAY

Jackson, Tenn., July 7.—(P)—Madison county grand jurors delving into the affairs of the wrecked People's Savings bank of Jackson, closed a month ago after the discovery of an apparent shortage of approximately $375,000—eight had before them the testimony of a dozen witnesses, the major part of a chain of evidence on which prosecuting officials have announced they would ask the indictment of at least four persons on charges of implication in alleged irregularities which resulted in the bank crash.

Prediction was made by T. J. Murray, district attorney general, that a report would be ready by noon for submission to Judge J. F. Richardson, sitting as a special judge. Thomas L. Carroll, former cashier; his son, John Carroll, an assistant cashier, and W. L. Cawthon, a timber dealer, are under bond to await grand jury action on charges in connection with the bank failure. Announcement was made by Mr. Murray prior to the inauguration of the investigation that indictments against each of these men would be submitted to the grand jury for action and also an investigation would be made of alleged dealings by Judge J. W. Ross, of the federal district court for western Tennessee, with the bank, with a view to considering an indictment against him also in the event the evidence warranted.

SENATOR GEORGE SPEAKS AT ROME

Rome, Ga., July 7.—(Special)—If America becomes a nation of law makers, it is inevitable that this shall become a nation of law breakers, United States Senator W. F. George declared in an address on the constitution at the Kiwanis meeting here today.

Senator George's address was a masterful analysis of the fundamental principles of the American constitution, in which he said that the one supreme thought of the framers of the Declaration of Independence, articles of confederation and finally the constitution was the preservation and security of the rights of freemen. This, he said, is the only thing new in the constitution of the United States.

"If we are to come back to the basic principles, there must be an end to the making of laws," said the senator. "The best way to conserve the rights of the people is through the constitution, through representation and through judiciary. It is for the public to understand that mere motion is not advancement and that common sense is not progress."

Citizen Found Dead

Rome, Ga., July 7.—(Special)—Nelson R. Pedycoart, 68, well-known contractor, was found dead about 100 yards from his home, on Wilkins street, in West Rome, this morning at 10:30 o'clock. He had been out for about an hour doing some work on his property. An inquest was held and resulted in finding that death was the result of pneumonia.

Pedycoart had been a resident of Floyd county for 25 years, coming here from Cedar Rapids, Iowa. He is survived by his wife, three children, four brothers and one sister.

Funeral services will be held from Mountain Spring church Wednesday afternoon.

HUGE RUM ARMADA MASSSED IN LAKES

Buffalo, N. Y., July 7.—(P)—The Buffalo Evening News today stated that the largest rum armada ever seen in Lake Ontario is mobilized and loading at Port Colborne, Ont., for a dash to the dry frontiers of the United States. The story said that the armada consists of seventeen craft of various types and estimates the value of the combined cargoes at more than $250,000.

FROM the very heart of the South comes a great hum of industry. It's Alabama. Those Alabamians have set themselves a goal toward which they are striding with sure and steady tread. A great industrial State has risen that is pouring forth wealth. It would seem that all the building materials in the world have been concentrated in her borders together with the coal to manufacture them into finished products.

In one year she produces 19,000,000 tons of coal, 3,750,000 tons of coke, 2,780,000 tons of iron, 1,850,000 tons of steel, 6,000,000 barrels of cement, 1,500,000,000 feet of lumber! $21,000,000 worth of cast-iron piping alone.

And there's "white coal" in abundance.

Nearly a million horse-power available from her streams.

Why should we go seeking distant markets when Alabama is so near at hand? Our salesmen can reach her without great traveling expense. Our products can be shipped to her with low freight rates. She has more than 5,000 miles of railroads, probably more navigable waterways than any other State, and a great ocean port at Mobile on which she is spending $10,000,000.

Alabama is one of our great opportunities. She has provided ample means of reaching her markets. Her newspapers will carry the story of what we have to sell direct to her thousands and hundreds of thousands of workers. We can use them for making bigger sales in Alabama.

POLA NEGRI TO PAY FINE FOR SMUGGLING

Hollywood, Calif., July 7.—(P)—Pola Negri, motion picture actress on whom treasury department officials have imposed a penalty of $10,000 for smuggling jewelry into the United States, will not appeal the case but will "remit the money to Washington at once."

"While I have been advised that I have the right to appeal," reads a statement released by the actress through her Hollywood representative tonight, "I certainly have no such intention, and I shall remit the money to Washington at once. I can only say that the situation was the result of my misunderstanding and that I had no intention of violating the laws of the country I hope to make my own."

BRICKLAYERS REJECT BUILDERS PROPOSALS

Washington, July 7.—(P)—The board of officers of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union of America tonight rejected a proposal advanced by representatives of builders looking to arbitration of the jurisdictional dispute between it and the Operative Plasterers' International union which is threatening to tie up $500,000,000 of construction in various parts of the country.

Mid-Week Roof Garden Dance At Club Assembles Society

Society assembled at the Capital City club Tuesday evening to enjoy the informal dinner-dance on the cool and delightful roof garden.

The tables, arranged around the outer edge of the roof, were adorned with small baskets of bright garden flowers, and flower boxes filled with shrubs and blossoms formed a background of greenery.

A congenial group together were Mr. and Mrs. George Caldwell Speer, Mrs. Jack Swarthout and John Kirkland, of Greenville, S. C., Dr. and Mrs. Walter Holmes, entertained Miss Hermoine Walker, Hobbrook Bradley, of New Haven, Conn.; William Walker, of Richmond, Va., and Dr. Champ Holmes.

Morris Brandon, Jr., and Iman Brandon entertained Miss Anne Spalding and her guest, Miss Adelaide Douglas, of Washington, D. C., and Winston Salem, N. C., and Robert Yowell, of Charlottesville, Va.

Mrs. J. Ford Collison, of Baltimore, Md., was central figure in a party at which her brother, H. D. Oliver, was host. Invited to meet the honoree were Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. White, Jr., Mrs. Joel C. Harris, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Graves, Chandler Harris III, L. W. Lee, of Tampa, Fla., and Eugene Harrington.

Mrs. John Slaton Honored at Tea.

Mrs. John M. Slaton, who is being welcomed home after an extended trip abroad, by a number of informal affairs, was honored by Mrs. Chauncey Smith at a lovely tea on Tuesday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving club.

The guests were seated at a beautifully appointed tea table placed on the terrace overlooking the swimming pool. A large basket, filled with various colored flowers, was used as a central decoration.

Covers were laid for ex-Governor and Mrs. Slaton, Major and Mrs. John S. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Agnew, and their guest, Mrs. Francis O'Neill, of Charleston, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Hollins Randolph, Jr., and Mrs. Robert C. Alston, Jr., and Mrs. William F. Shallenberger, Jr., and Mrs. Henry Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Luncheon Given For Lovely Visitors.

Miss Adelaide Douglas, of Washington, D. C., and Winston Salem, N. C., who has been the guest of Miss Nancy Carr, is now the guest of Miss Anne Spalding and is continuing to be honored at many delightful affairs.

On Tuesday Miss Rima Erwin entertained at her home in Park Lane, complimenting Miss Douglas at a luncheon.

The luncheon table was beautifully appointed and overlaid with an exquisite cloth. As a center decoration there was a large silver basket filled with lavender and pink phlox. Lovely hand-painted placecards marked the places of the guests.

Miss Erwin was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Howell Cobb Erwin.

Covers were placed for Misses Douglas, Anne Spalding, Sophie Street, Ruth Osburn, Catherine Chandler, Ruth McMillan and Elizabeth Whitman.

New York Visitor To Be Honored.

Miss Florence McChesney, of New York, arrived Tuesday to be the guest of Mrs. Royal Daniel, at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Allen Johnson, on Peachtree road. Many delightful affairs will do honor to this lovely visitor, among them being the party at which Miss Marion Berry, of New York, will entertain on Saturday afternoon at the residence at the Atlanta Biltmore.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson will give a buffet supper for Miss McChesney at their home in East Lake.

DeWitt Johnson will entertain in honor of Miss McChesney Sunday evening.

Tuesday afternoon, July 14, Miss McChesney will share honors with Miss Marion Berry, of New York, at the tea to be given by Mrs. George L. Berry.

Other affairs are being planned, the dates to be announced later.

Miss Daves Weds Henry Sacre At Impressive Home Ceremony

An impressive wedding marked by simplicity and beauty was that of Miss Katherine Daves and Henry Bradley Sacre, which took place at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Arminius Wright, on the Prado in Ansley park. The home was beautifully decorated with similar, ferns and summer flowers. In the dining room where the ceremony was performed an improvised altar was formed of stately palms with cathedral candelabra holding burning tapers on either side.

Miss Daves had as her maid of honor a sister of the groom, Miss Leslie Sacre, who was her only attendant. Miss Sacre entered alone and her gown was a model of flowered georgette in becoming shades of blue. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of pastel shaded summer blossoms.

Lovely Bride.
The bride entered with her brother, Joel C. Daves, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Virgil Chew.

The radiant bride was lovely in her robe of white chiffon made over white satin and elaborately embroidered in crystal and trimmed with roses of the chiffon. The graceful train was bound in satin and orange blossoms were caught at intervals down the entire length. The filmy tulle veil was attached to her dark hair with a bandeau of these same lovely blossoms and her bouquet was of white roses showered with valley lilies and satin streamers.

Dr. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the Peachtree Christian church, performed the impressive ceremony, and only the members of the two families were present.

Mrs. Marion Clifton sang "At Dawning" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" just prior to the entrance of the wedding party.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wright entertained at an informal reception. The hostess was given in a lovely model of blue georgette. Assisting in the entertainment of the guests were Mrs. C. M. Sacre, mother of the groom; Miss Margaret Sacre.

LOUISE DOOLY

THE woods are full of 'em. Full of what? Why, camps, of course. And the camps, in turn, are full of boys and girls.

Johnny is roughing it somewhere in the mountains. Sister Sue ditto somewhere else.

She is a bit timid at the start, perhaps if camp has hitherto only been a name. But it is history that she now is living soon absorbing her. And when her anxious parents send word that they are on their way for a visit, they find, instead of homesick tears, so full a program for little Susannah that she really cannot say just what hour she can best spare to her immediate ancestors.

It is hard to miss the swimming hour or the hiking time, or the talk-dance practice, and certainly the meal hour.

And Johnny—well, the little Johnny is, the bigger the ax he selects to hew his way through forests that are going to teach him the crafts of the woodman. And it is perfectly remarkable the variety of subjects that Johnny feels is going to be absolutely essential to camp efficiency.

Besides knives and a bathing suit, Johnny is magnificently careless of whether he has any other equipment.

And yes, it is possible, positively the most important thing, and the only reminder he leaves the family is that the camp table will not be excused by any reinforcements that may be sent home.

IT is a good sign, by the way, that even in the summer months, if parents, if they do not put their boys in camp for the summer, are putting them to work, after a brief vacation, that it is a good sign.

There is no doubt that the influence of the summer camp, in the United States and Mrs. Coolidge in expecting first two boys, and now their first, to work during vacation with their hands, and the admirable spirit of these boys were a moment to be upset by their father's sudden elevation to the highest office in the land, had had a most wholesome effect.

GRAPEFRUIT With Cream Cheese Balls

Grapefruit, 2
Cream cheese, 3 oz.
Paprika, 1 teaspoon
Olive oil, 6 tablespoons

SALADS

Lemon juice, 2 tablespoons
Grapefruit juice, 2 tablespoons
Salt, 1/2 teaspoon
Sugar, 1 teaspoon
Inner Lettuce Leaves, 12

Serves 6 People
Peel 2 medium sized grapefruit. Separate into sections removing the skin from each. Put in the ice box to chill. Make a dressing of the olive oil, lemon juice, grapefruit juice, salt and sugar and mix it well. Form the cream cheese into balls rolling them in the paprika. Soak the cream cheese balls in the dressing for an hour or more. At time of serving arrange the lettuce leaves and grapefruit sections on individual salad plates, garnish with the cream cheese balls and dress with the dressing which should be again well mixed together.

BEAUTY CHATS

ANSWERED LETTERS.
Harriet:—At 15 years of age many boys or girls feel that their features do not go together. Noses usually appear much too large for the faces. But it only means that this feature has matured a bit faster than the others, and when there is more development the nose appears to be smaller.

No one takes these things seriously, as one really sees the child as he or she will be when grown up, and no one is conscious of the unevenness in the meantime.

M. W.—With light brown hair, grey blue eyes, and a colorless skin, you should wear vivid colors, when ever possible, and if you wear dark or sombre colors there should always be some touch of bright color somewhere. Red brown, bright blue and black, blue, maroon and henna will suit you best.

For a full face, dress the hair as high as you can and still keep it in style. A low neck line will be coming to you as it will also give length to the face.

Young Mother:—Consult the doctor about the little girl's nervous condition.

A Girl:—In massaging your arms or legs aim to make deep kneading motions so that you will increase the circulation in the muscles; keep the palm of your hand moistened with the oil that you are using as nourishment for the tissues near the skin.

Always use a few drops of the same results as a professional as these people spend years in training for their work.

Anxious:—You are very much overweight at 160 pounds, for 15 years of age, even though your height is five feet, six inches; but no girl or boy either at your age should be so very stout as you are.

Aim to eat less of all the fattening foods, of those that are starchy or oily, and sweet ones. Do not overeat at any meal; it is possible to train your stomach to require much less, if you will eat less for a few days. The stomach shrinks and does not want so much. After a few more years you may not weigh anything like what you do now.

Jerry:—It takes skill to bleach hair to an attractive shade, but you may hit the right proportions and the correct time for allowing the bleach to stay on your hair; but it is just a chance that you will be taking.

Peroxide bleaching is rarely done any more as it results in a very artificial shade of gold, and unless the features appear to be harsh and the hair looks very unnatural with the natural shade of hair.

Blonde Bobbie:—As your hair is so dry and brittle I think it would be helped, if you massage the oil you mention into your scalp. Clip off

Being a breezy column of fashion "pick ups", news notes and interesting to women about shoes.

Paris Bound!

I OFTEN wonder if folks who go to Paris to buy fashions ever feel a sharp tinge of regret when they see the same identical garment that they paid a "hundred" for in America for $19.50. That would just take the life out of me.

Science!

WHAT marvelous things are being accomplished by science! The isolation of the Diptheria germ alone has saved the lives of hundreds of thousands in a few short years. Now comes the isolation of the "Distribution germ" in business and it is said that The Nisley Shoe Company through this newer method has in less than a year saved the women of America hundreds of thousands of dollars on their footwear bills.

It's Simple!

AN old time merchant operating all alone and doing a limited volume of business, (half of it on credit) buys his shoes from a factory which maintains a traveling sales-staff and carries half its customers on the books all the time. This factory making up small orders and only getting paid for part of what is sold by the expensive traveling sales-staff has to charge the lone merchant plenty for his shoes—the lone merchant facing the same situation passes the heavy burden along to the customer.

Presto!

WITH one Herculean swing, science wipes out the traveling sales-staff—eliminates all credits (both retail and wholesale). Orders for thousands of pairs of shoes replace the orders for hundreds of pairs. Stores in many cities operating (with the factory) as a single unit, eliminate all need of the double-profit—the victory has been won—science has isolated the "Distribution germ" successfully, and Nisley's Beautiful Shoes at $5.00 are the real proof.

Miss Colvin Elected President Of Alpha Province of Phi Mu

Miss Mary Richards Colvin, of Atlanta, was elected president of Alpha province of Phi Mu, at the biennial national convention of Phi Mu fraternity held at Charlevoix, Mich., June 27-July 3. This announcement is of particular interest to Phi Mu's throughout the southern states.

Phi Mu fraternity, second oldest for women, was founded at Wesleyan college, Macon, Ga., in 1852, and is today one of the leading fraternities for women with chapters in every section of the United States. In memory of its mother chapter the fraternity has for its philanthropic work gives to the state of Georgia the Phi Mu healthmobile used by the child welfare department. Alpha province includes chapters and alumnae associations in the states of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Miss Colvin was a member of Alpha Alpha chapter of Phi Mu at the University of Georgia and while there took a prominent part in student activities and fraternity affairs, being in her senior year chairman of the women's Pan-Hellenic association. She has been much interested in the work of her fraternity and was secretary of the Atlanta Alumnae association of Phi Mu the past year.

OFFICER OBJECTS TO BATHING SUITS FOR STREET WEAR

Savannah, Ga., July 7.—"Unless the women stop it, they must be hit on the pocket," ironically phrased, Police-Commissioner Foy in regard to young women wearing bathing suits on the streets here. The commissioner said they must put on more decent apparel when they come uptown or else be docketed by police.

The warning applies to young men also, he added.

METHODISTS HOLD INTERESTING MEET AT WILLACOCHEE

Willacoochee, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—Revival services at the Methodist church here began Sunday, the services being held in the school auditorium.

Rev. Sam Haynes, general evangelist for the North Georgia conference, is assisting, the joint pastor in the meeting. The music is in charge of Hamp Sewell, well-known singer and song leader.

The meeting is expected to be one of the greatest ever held in this section.

Contest Dismissed, Wheeler Retains Seat as Legislator

The contested Pickens county seat in the house of representatives was given late Tuesday to E. Wheeler, republican, by the committee on privileges and elections.

Mr. Wheeler's seat was contested by W. J. Ballew, democrat.

The contestant was without counsel, although it was brought out that former Governor Hartsfield had formerly represented him in the contest. Judge Newt A. Morris, of Marietta, represented Mr. Wheeler.

After preliminary hearing of just what evidence should be admitted, the committee decided to consider only that evidence introduced in the three weeks' court hearing given this and two other contests in Pickens county. Judge Morris made the point that because the contestant had not brought certain papers before the committee, he had no case, but the committee voted to consider the evidence.

Two voluminous packages of evidence were introduced by the contestant, and he and the attorney for Mr. Wheeler were each given 15 minutes to present their cases. The contestant claimed illegal votes were cast in the election, and that the election was void. Judge Morris emphatically denied this charge, and said that as a matter of fact, technically illegal votes were cast on both sides. Mr. Wheeler, he said, won the case in the court because he challenged more votes; either side, he said, could have produced more illegally cast votes than were brought before the court.

The committee considered the contest in executive session for a short time and then announced their decision.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL ENDS AT THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—The revival services being held at the First Baptist church, conducted by D. Sammon, pastor of the First Baptist church of Rome, closed Sunday night, after having been carried on successfully for the past two weeks. A number have united with the church and many have attended the services to hear Dr. Sammon, whose sermons are very strong and impressive.

The song services, under the leadership of Mr. Holman, were much enjoyed.

FENCE ADVOCATES WIN IRWIN ELECTION

Ocala, Ga., July 7.—(Special.)—The election on the question of fence or no fence was voted upon in Irwin county Wednesday, and the final count and returns, for consolidation showed that "fence" carried by more than two to one.

There is a large acreage of pasture and uncultivated lands in this county, making it favorable to those farmers to allow their stock to run at large on these lands.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Many years ago Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., originated her now famous Vegetable Compound for women, by steeping roots and herbs on her kitchen stove. The fame of its success for overcoming some of the most stubborn ailments of women spread far and wide until today the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., is said to be the largest user of roots and herbs in the world. It operates a large laboratory at Lynn, Mass., others at Colburn, Canada; Mexico City, Mexico; Rancagua, Spain, and Paris, France.—(adv.)

Lovely Atlanta Girl Returns From Interesting Trip Abroad

Miss Mary Virginia Woolley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Price Woolley, who landed Tuesday on the Doric after a delightful stay abroad.

Miss Mary Virginia Woolley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Price Woolley, of Highland drive, has returned from a most delightful trip to Europe. Miss Woolley landed in New York on Tuesday on the steamer "Doric," and will come straight to Atlanta, accompanied by Miss Ruth Harding and Dr. George T. Harding III, who will be her guests for some time.

Miss Woolley went abroad as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. George Harding, Jr., of Worthington, Ohio, who were members of a party of American physicians who traveled abroad. They were greatly fettered while across the water. This international post-graduate tour of American physicians began at Toronto, where the physicians and their families gathered May 17. The party sailed on two boats specially chartered for the purpose and reached England by May 21. The tour included the British Isles and France. In London the party were received by the Lord Mayor with official ceremony and many interesting social occasions, marked every day. Particularly interesting was a garden party at which Lady Astor was hostess.

Dr. Harding is a distinguished physician whose reputation in the medical profession is scarcely less brilliant than that of his more widely known brother, the late President Warren G. Harding. Dr. Harding writes junior after his name because his father is a physician as all the world came to know in the lifetime of President Harding, and just by way of keeping up the family tradition, the handsome and brilliant young son of Dr. Harding, Jr., is already Dr. George T. Harding III, and is putting in busy years of study at Linda Loma sanatorium in California.

Miss Woolley, Miss Ruth Harding and Dr. Harding III began their acquaintance when fellow students at college in Washington, D. C., during the latter part of President Harding's administration and the devoted friendship between the three young people has been cemented by affectionate interest on the part of their parents. During part of each vacation Miss Woolley is the guest of the Hardings at their Ohio home, so that the Harding family on deciding to join the group of physicians touring Europe invited Miss Woolley to join them.

Dublin, Ga., July 7.—Tomatoes are to be grown this fall as a money crop. Several farmers of this district. There has been an effort made by the chamber of commerce to have the farmers of this county raise more fall tomatoes, as there is a great demand for them throughout the year.

ACTION IS DELAYED ON COURT MEASURE

A sharp debate on a measure by Representative Bozeman, of Greene, designed to lessen temptation to mob rule in Georgia, ended Tuesday when on motion of the author, final action on the measure was postponed. The tilt featured the first meeting of the house committee on constitutional amendments held on Tuesday afternoon.

The Greene representative proposed to require the supreme court or court of appeals to render its decision in all cases where the convicted defendant is held in jail on an unaffordable offense, within 60 days after the record in the case reaches the court. Under present provisions the court has 12 months to make its decision.

Judge Arthur Powell, former judge of the court of appeals, was present at the meeting as an onlooker and on special invitation gave his views on the proposal. Judge Powell opposed the bill, stating that there should be no forcing of the hands of the appellate courts in making decisions on points of law.

Several members of the committee also opposed the bill, after which Mr. Bozeman made the motion to defer action.

The committee, meeting for the first time Tuesday, perfected its organization by electing Representative Paul H. Doyal, of Floyd, as secretary and setting 15 as a quorum. There are 66 members on the committee.

Resolutions were adopted setting aside next Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, a time for a special meeting on five measures calling either for income tax or classification tax measures. Next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock the committee will hold a joint session in the senate chamber, with the senate committee on constitutional amendments to hear all parties interested in a bill by Bussey, of Crisp, to allow that county to issue bonds of $1,250,000 to acquire water-power rights and construct a hydro-electric development project. Prominent citizens of Crisp are competing for this hearing, Mr. Bussey stated.

Immediately following this hearing at 4 o'clock, the joint session will hear members of the Georgia Bar association on a bill calling for a constitutional amendment on the method of election of judges in Georgia.

Dr. Stovall, representative from Elbert county, brought up his measure to eliminate from the constitution, in the section defining the state's rights to levy taxes, the clause limiting educational taxes "for primary English instruction only." After brief argument, it was found that the bill as drawn was defective, and consideration, therefore, was postponed until a later meeting.

ATLANTES CLUB NAMES C. P. WOOD TREASURER

C. P. Wood was elected treasurer of the Atlanta year club meeting Tuesday at the Henry Grady hotel. He succeeds Alex M. Hitz, who resigned because he will be out of the city most of the time in the next six months.

Donald Oberdorfer, who just returned from a trip to New York, gave a humorous account of his "adventures" and was awarded the attendance prize as the best raconteur in the club.

A committee was appointed by William G. Grant, president, to draft resolutions on the death of Captain Charles A. Watkins, who was a charter member of the Atlantes.

ROTARIANS STAGE SPECIAL PROGRAM

Dr. M. Ashby Jones was principal speaker Tuesday at the luncheon of the Atlanta Rotary club. A special Independence day program was the order of the day and Dr. Jones spoke on "Liberty of Thought."

Features of the program included vocal selections by Mrs. Charles Sheldon and a recitation by Mrs. W. C. Jarrington. Robert Gregg, president of the club, presided.

BOYS' HIGH SCHOOL OPENS SUMMER TERM

The summer school for students of Boys' High school who failed to be promoted last year opened Monday at Commercial High school, it was announced Tuesday by H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent of schools. Hal Hulse and Phil Rose, Boys' High school faculty, are in charge of the school.

Woman Loses Job As Dry Lecturer For U. S. Bureau

Washington, July 7.—(AP)—Laying down a new policy in prohibition work, Assistant Secretary Andrews, of the treasury, has ordered the discontinuance of speeches by women agents of the prohibition unit designed as educational efforts to create sentiment for law enforcement.

As a result of the order, Miss Georgia Hopley, of Bucyrus, Ohio, who was assigned by Commissioner Hayes to work among women's organizations, has resigned. She has been a member of the dry unit since early in the Harding administration.

Two other women agents are employed in enforcement but inasmuch as their work is similar to that of the regular agents in working on enforcement problems, their status will not be affected.

Assistant Commissioner Jones said today the abolishment of the work done by Miss Hopley had been under consideration for some time. Treasury officials have held that activities such as she was assigned to were not part of the duties of the government and although considerable pressure has been brought to bear to have it continued, officials in charge of enforcement have definitely decided that

The Glorious Adventure of Home-making An Editorial

By James Wallen

There is a romance in staying at home and thrilling adventure in making that home a house of dreams.

Many a precious pair of home-makers are having a glamorous time in furnishing and decorating their abode in a style after their hearts.

The staff of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose takes pleasure in assisting those who are adventuring in search of an idyllic home.

And, as always, Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose puts emphasis on the merit and value of the stuffs of which homes are made—the mellow furniture, the cheer-dispensing lamps, the comforting rugs and the lovely fabrics that enfold rooms with coziness.

In this store your selections are made from stocks gathered by sure eyes and timely hands. There is no speculation for you here.

With all of the practical advantages of newness, Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose merchandise has the quality of rich costumes kept in the oaken chest of a king, their colors subdued and their beauty deepened. It is a newness filled with the repose of things old and fine.

The ability thus to serve you with the things that minister to both use and beauty, is found only in a store dedicated to the high dignity of quality.

The Golden Beast

-BY-

E. Phillips Oppenheim

Her host nodded sympathetically. It was not a pleasing gesture, as it drove his second chin on to his collar. He had learned many lessons during the passing of the years, and with a conscious effort he omitted all mention of his standing order for 10,000 of the best eggs.

"We'll try and give the marchioness some sport," he promised genially. "I'm shooting myself tomorrow. I've been looking after things the last two or three times, but my boy's taking that on now—good sportsman, Ernest."

"How very unselfish of you," his neighbor purred. "I hear great accounts of your elder son, Lord Honerton. They tell me he will be first secretary at Paris, if he stays there, before many years have passed."

"Henry's a good lad," his father admitted, "and his head's screwed on all right. I sometimes wish we'd had him in the business. Still one can't have it all ways."

"I should think not, indeed," the marchioness continued. "You ought to be very proud of your children, Lord Honerton. There wasn't a more distinguished last court who didn't declare that Judith is the most beautiful girl who has been seen at Buckingham Palace for years. My boy Frederick was in the throne room on duty. He could talk of nobody else—couldn't remember what he had to do in the least."

Lord Honerton glanced down the table.

"He seems to have recovered himself now," he remarked.

"Frederick is always at his best when he is with some one he really likes," his mother confided. "He's a dear fellow, though elder sons are rather an expense," she sighed. "Polo and all those things cost so much money nowadays. I am afraid there'll be nothing of the sort for the younger boys. We thought of trying to get Dick into a good business where he could make some money. What do you think, Lord Honerton?"

Her host became a little less expansive. There were plenty of millions to be made in the great Fernham business, but they were most distinctly to be made by members of the Fernham family. Clerks and managers and travelers were all very well, but he had a shrewd idea as to the outlook of a man like the marchioness who was seeking a commercial career for her son. There was no room for anything in the least ornamental at the Fernham works.

"It depends whether he's got it in him or not," he remarked in a non-committal sort of way. "As a rule, the man who makes money in commerce is the man who has inherited the instinct for it. I can't imagine Lord Frederick, for instance, or any son of yours, holding his own nowadays in the commercial world."

"Unless he were helped," the marchioness murmured.

"There are only two sorts of help," Lord Honerton declared. "One is the giving of an opportunity. That's all right, but it isn't worth a damn unless the recipient's got the right stuff in him to make use of it. The second kind simply means providing an income which the recipient doesn't earn. I call that charity."

The marchioness was a little ruffled. The worst of these princes of commerce, she decided, was that they had no sensibility. She was preparing to change the conversation when an event happened which to just three people in the room—to Lord Honerton, his wife, and Samuel, his brother—was possessed of a peculiar, almost sinister significance. It was the lifting once more of a forgotten curtain of tragedy. A servant had entered the room and whispered to the Marchioness that her husband had moved to behind Ernest Honerton's chair, and with a little bow leaned forward.

"I beg your pardon sir," said "Middleton," the head keeper, is outside. He has just brought the plan of the house up to the house. He wondered, sir, whether you had any further orders to give before he left. The young man rose to his feet. There was perhaps a spice of vanity in the situation, but he was indeed keenly interested in the matter.

"Might I be excused for a moment or two?" he asked. "Middleton has brought up the plan of the house for tomorrow, and I should like to have just a word or two with him. We lost a lot of birds at the park covers we didn't get them again."

The son of the party smiled approvingly, well pleased at this reminder of the morrow's sport. The women were pleasantly indifferent, although Ernest's smile at him and whispered something about not being long. But there were three people there who sat as though transfixed to stone. Lady Honerton's dark eyes, so much more brilliant in these later days, it had seemed, owing to wasting of her skin, held for a moment a gleam of almost inhuman terror. From her husband's face, the patch of color, heritage of his recent indulgence, faded into a sickly slur. His fat, pudgy fingers gripped the table on either side of him, his heady eyes seemed to have crept from underneath his eyelids till they were in danger of dropping out altogether. Farther down the table, Samuel had leaned forward, his hands clasped on the top of his stout stick, his gaze wandering alternately from his brother to his sister-in-law. Ernest had walked away, and now towards the door before he realized that anything was the matter. He stopped short at once as he caught sight of his father's face.

"Hallo, dad?" he exclaimed. "Nothing wrong, is there? You wanted me to look after the shooting? It's all right for me to have a word with Middleton, isn't it? I'll be back directly."

"Quite all right," his father muttered.

"Don't be long," his mother begged. "I feel like a naughty boy who has got down without permission," the young man laughed, as he continued his progress towards the door. If Middleton keeps me more than a few minutes, I'll join you all in the bridge room."

He passed out and the door was closed behind him. Very few people had realized the depth of the shock for their host and hostess had brought, for a moment, an atmosphere of horrified reminiscence into the room. Conversation was resumed again almost directly. It was not until the marchioness noticed the little beads of perspiration all over her host's forehead that a sudden wave of memory assailed her.

"My dear Lord Honerton!" she exclaimed. "Do forgive us for not having recognized at once this most distressing coincidence. I was very young at the time—it must be 30 years ago, isn't it?—but I remember distinctly the shock we all felt, every one in the county felt, when they heard the terrible news. It was your brother, of course, who was murdered by that madman, wasn't it? And if I remember rightly he was fetched out of the room in precisely the same manner."

"The message was almost identical," Lord Honerton groaned, mopping his forehead.

"Most distressing," the marchioness declared. "However, in this instance there need be no anxiety. Middleton is a most respectable man—Frederick thinks highly of him—and he has no family. It was the association, of course, which was so painful."

Lady Honerton rose a little abruptly, and the men, after the departure of the women, drew closer together, Lord in their praises of their lost son, eager in their discussion of the possible leg tomorrow. The marchioness would have moved up to his host's left hand, but Samuel Fernham had just anticipated him—Samuel Fernham, leaning heavily on his ivory-knocked stick, had hobbled up and sunk into the chair adjoining his brother's. He leaned over and laid his yellow hand upon the other's thick one.

"That was a shock, brother," he said quietly. "It was like looking back into the past—that horrible night! Never mind. That all lies 30 years behind. That is finished."

Joseph looked at him gratefully, but with some of the old terror still smoldering in his face.

"That is finished, Samuel," he acquiesced. "It is the memory that never dies!"

INSTALLMENT II.

Search.

Lord Honerton allowed his guests that evening far less time than usual for discussing his admirable port. He rose a little abruptly just as everyone was settling down, and led the way toward the door.

"They are waiting for some of us to play bridge," he vouchsafed by way of explanation. "The coffee and cigars will be in the cardroom."

There was something almost like consternation among those who had just filled their glasses. The marchioness declined to be hustled.

"We'll follow you in a minute, if we may, Honerton," she said. "Your port is too good to be treated in such a cavalier fashion."

Joseph mumbled something and hurried on. He was not usually a nervous man, but a queer little demon of unrest was sitting in his heart. He crossed the hall at a speed which left Samuel far behind, and looked eagerly around the bridge room. Most of the women were collected there, some already at the bridge table, one or two around the great log fire. There was no sign of Ernest, however. Through the half-closed portiere he could hear the sound of billiard balls in the room beyond. He looked in there and found Judith playing another youthful member of the house party a game of pool.

"See anything of Ernest?" he inquired.

Judith paused in the act of chalk- ing her cue.

"He hasn't been in here, dad," she said. "I expect he's still with Middleton."

Joseph dropped the curtain, stepped back into the bridge room, and made his way with somewhat unsteady deliberation toward the servant's quarters. He skirted these, and passing through a green baize door into a stone-flagged passage which led to the rear of the house, pushed open the door of the gunroom. A little blue cigarette smoke was still hanging about, but the room was empty. Robinson, one of the underkeepers, came out of an adjoining apartment, with the gun which he had been cleaning in his hand.

"Have you seen Mr. Ernest?" Joseph asked quickly.

"Not for the last ten minutes, my lord," the man replied. "He was in the gunroom with Middleton then."

"Where is Middleton?"

"Gone home about ten minutes since, my lord."

Joseph nodded and turned away, with the intention of rejoining his guests, continually telling himself he was a fool and continually wondering at the damp on his forehead, the queer sense of impending disaster in his heart. He did his best to struggle against it, however, and exchanged casual greetings with the little stream of men whom he met crossing the hall. Arrived in the dining room, he summoned Martin.

"Martin," he enjoined, "I wish you would find Mr. Ernest for me. He has perhaps gone up to his room. If he isn't there search until you find him. I want him for bridge."

"Very good, my lord," the man replied.

Joseph returned to the bridge room. He looked around eagerly, with some faint hope that he might have missed Ernest on his way to the back quarters. He was not anywhere in sight, however, nor was he in the billiard room, nor in the great lounge hall, where there was another billiard table and where one or two men were playing pool. Joseph returned once more to the bridge room, poured himself out a stiff glass of brandy, and drank it.

"Where for bridge?" he asked, strolling toward his guests. "We have enough for three tables, haven't we? Will you play with me, marchioness, and you, Lady Levator, and you, Powell? Good! Then you four might play as you are," he added, with a wave of the hand "and Ernest can make you others up when he comes."

"Where is Ernest?" Lady Honerton inquired, looking across at her husband. "I thought you went to find him."

"He seems to have gone up to his room, my dear," the latter replied. "I've sent Martin to fetch him. Will you come to this table, Lady Levator?"

This chart shows the increase in bond issues underwritten by G. L. Miller & Co. during the last five years of the company's long experience.

The "Life-line" of increasing opportunities for Miller investors

BEHIND every Miller Bond issue is a service to the mortgage property which begins before the foundation is laid and which ends only when the last bond has been retired. Miller architects and engineers supervise the planning of the building. And after the building is completed, the Miller organization renders assistance in maintaining efficient management.

Here is a service of safety—appreciated by those who undertake large building operations—all-important to you who invest in first mortgage bonds.

Because owners of hotels, office buildings and apartment houses appreciate the value of this service in making their investment profitable, G. L. Miller & Co. is called upon to finance more and more of the finest income-earning properties in all sections of the country.

Thus do Miller customers find constantly growing opportunities for profitable investment in first mortgage bond issues of the highest type.

reinvest your money. Its result has been that year in and year out, regardless of panic or boom, no Miller investor has lost one penny of principal or has ever waited for payment of interest. It means safety for your principal and protection for your income.

Remember that while Miller sales have grown on an average of 100 per cent per annum for the last five years, Miller reserve and surplus have kept step.

Miller bonds pay interest up to 7 per cent.
